NWMSC Coed Entrant In Miss Missouri Pageant

NWMSC students have a special interest in the Miss Missouri Pageant this year. Kathi Kennick, 21 year old co-ed, will compete in St. Joseph with beauties from all over the state for the much-desired title.

Kathi won this right when she was chosen Miss Maryville during the recent spring contest sponsored by the Jaycees.

Thursday, July 19, activities for Miss Kinnick include: Indoctrination for contestants, parents, and sponsors; Lion's Luncheon; press meeting; rehearsal at the Frog Hop Ballroom; a TV show; and the contestants' banquet.

On Friday activity begins with a judges' breakfast and individual interviews. Next will be rehearsal at the Frog Hop, the Pepsi Reception at Hotel Robidoux, and finally at 7:30 p.m. the actual Pageant at the Frog Hop.

Contestants are to be judged in evening gowns, in swimsuits, and for talent Kathi will sing an aria from the opera "Gianni Schicchi" by Puccini for the latter part of the contest.

Since the pageant is open to the public and tickets are only $3.00, college students are encouraged to travel to St. Joseph to support the co-ed.

Here at school Kathi majors in music and takes an active part in several organizations. She is presently serving as vice-president of the Delta Zeta sorority and has been secretary of the Tower Choir, treasurer of band, and also secretary of MENC.

Archaeological Center Tour Made by 31 MSC Students, Professors

The group took a side trip to the famous Civil War battle ground at Lexington, Mo.

Other sponsors who accompanied the group were Dr. Earl Bragdon and Dr. and Mrs. Floyd Delon.

Do Students Get Fair Deal?

Housing Editorial

Probably the majority of the students living off-campus are well-satisfied with the standards of their accommodations, but . . . That one word, but makes it necessary to shine the editorial spotlight on the exception to the rule.

In some cases a mockery is made of the whole system of "approved" housing. Since the residence halls and quads are overcrowded, and only a few students are able to live in fraternity houses, a large portion of the student body must look elsewhere. A convenient monopoly is established for the lucky landlord.

Not that the situation is in such a sad state of affairs that a complete overhaul is needed, but few do believe an altering of the pattern is necessary.

Why? The answer is because the present system is based on an individual rent—in most cases $5 per occupant per week. Is the picture beginning to take shape? More students, more money.

Is there any way to calculate the amount of hardship and difficulties endured by NWMSC students who are forced, out of necessity, to be crammed into these circumstances? The real victim is the serious student who cannot find the space nor the time and the opportunity to really apply himself to his books. With three people in a room it is next to impossible to find the time when all three feel like studying.

Once a college takes it upon itself, in the name of human decency, to decide where students shall live and where they shall not live, then that college has acquired the responsibility for the welfare of the students.

Many stories, and some we grant are rather far-fetched tales, have drifted to the ears of members of the staff. Stories of crowded rooms, cold rooms, rooms where bathroom facilities are not located on the same floor as the room, drab rooms, and dumpy rooms.

And then there is the case of the overzealous landlord, who in the name of careful supervision, has established hours for male students and evening curfews on telephone messages. But, these little inconveniences never hurt anyone. And so, these may be overlooked. But, not the pigs.

To counteract malpractices, these measures might help:

1. That each student living off-campus be assured a specific amount of living space.
2. That maximum rates be set up for all apartments.

3. That frequent and thorough inspections of all approved housing be conducted, for once, in the interest of the student. And don't be so darned concerned that the landlord might not approve.

Do You Remember . . .

That Wonderful Year when:

Dresses were 4-5 inches below the knee.
Admission to the Tivoli was 35c for adults.
At Montgomery Shoe Co., Ladies' Shoes were 88c.
Women's Ice Skates were 98c.
Westinghouse Electrical Toasters were $3.95.
Westinghouse Electrical Irons were $3.49.
Cruise and tour of Europe, Mediterranean, and Norway, cost $590.00.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was governor of New York.
Herbert Hoover was Thirty-first president.
Auguste Piccard and Charles Kipfer in a balloon went higher than any human had gone before 10 miles.

Al Capone was head of liquor industry.
Moonshining became respectable in southern hill country.

First World Bank was established.
Popular books were "The Good Earth" by Pearl S. Buck and "My Experience in the World War" by John J. Pershing.

Popular Stage Play was "As Husbands Go."
Popular Movies were "Cimarron," "City Streets" with Gary Cooper, and "Connecticut Yankee" with Will Rogers.

Famous Actresses were Gloria Swanson, Tallulah Bankhead, and Sylvia Sidney.
Famous Actors were John Barrymore, Edward G. Robinson, and Maurice Chevalier.

Popular songs of the time were "Two Hearts," "I Found a Million Dollar Baby," "Dancing in the Dark," and "Walkin' My Baby Back Home."

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"LEMONADE!! WHAT A THOUGHTFUL SURPRISE, WORTHAL, ON SUCH A HOT AFTERNOON!"

Letter to the Editor

I feel obligated to answer the statements made in the "Stroller" last issue. For purposes of recall for the readers of this letter, it was aimed at the instructor's attitudes towards grades at NWMSC.

It is obvious that this was a grudge letter, and I do not feel it in good taste and the author, who was anonymous, should take another look at his or her sub-conscious and see if I am not right.

In the first place, it is very hard for me to believe that the attitudes mentioned are consistent. They are not the rule, but the exception. Secondly, grades are not given, but earned. This school is not that tough to get through, nor it is unreasonable in its grading methods or attitudes.

Lastly, the author should take a good look at student-faculty relationships in this college and evaluate whether or not his or her letter promotes or helps them.

I am sorry, but I cannot swallow your unpalatable sad, sad story.

(Signed) Ted Jamison

Editor's Comment:

The Missourian welcomes reader comment but urges readers to read before commenting. First THE STROLLER is not "a letter;" it is a column that has appeared almost since the Missourian made its appearance as "The Green and White" courier. It is not anonymous; it is by "The Stroller." The Stroller did not single out teachers of any particular institution; rather she called for teachers on teachers in general. He is not motivated by any grudge. (the pronoun bit is traditional, too).

If any one put the shoe on and found that it fit—The Stroller says Das tut mer lieb!

Student-Teacher Obligations

Has anyone ever used infra-red contact lenses to cheat on a test. This is an old game between student and teachers. In February 1961, rules and regulations were set forth for student cheating, and teacher policies in instruction.

The student obligation policy set forth was:

A. Faculty member will report the action of cheating to the Dean of Administration.

B. Penalty is immediate failure and dismissal from class.

C. The second instance will be dismissal from college.

The teacher recommendations set forth were:

A. New exams are to be prepared each semester.

B. Different tests are to be made for each section of the course.

C. Exams are to be adequately supervised.

D. All papers and tests should be graded and returned before next papers or tests are scheduled.

E. Instruction should be specific and clear for all tests and other assignments.

F. Old tests or examples of tests of each course should be made available.

G. Tests should keep up with the material and instruction.

H. All term papers should be returned to the students and marks shown.

I. Reports, laboratory exercises, projects, term papers and the like will be thoroughly checked.

J. Constant repetition of the same term paper topic should be avoided.

Each faculty member is to inform the students in each of his classes of what is to be considered cheating. Special attention should be given to student behavior in connection with exams, papers, reports, problems, laboratory exercises and the like.

The Stroller

TARGET THE CORRUPTORS!!!! The Stroller feels she has fallen into this role accidentally. The reason is due to last week's article. In apology, the Stroller invites those teachers deprived of their coffee to be guests at the expense of the Northwest Missourian.

Applied psychology in finding library books has become quite a field of study. It seems that books are disappearing at a rapid rate from the college library. The only answer to this problem must be that returning teachers are building a library of their own. The Stroller wonders if books are too expensive or teacher's salaries too poor?

There seems to be quite a controversy over the coffee in the den. Some claim that battery acid is mild as compared to the affect of the den's coffee. How can anyone expect a good five cent cup of coffee at seven in the morning?

Remember what Confucius said? What did Confucius say about coffee???

In closing, the stroller would like to remind all students that there is only three weeks of school left. Everybody better dig in and study hard because exams are just around the corner. Remember what Bug Bunny said: Eh! What's up, Doc?

Tune in next week to a really, really, good article!!!!

Ceramic Pottery Display in Library

Perhaps on one of your many trips to the library, you have noticed the display of ceramic pottery in the display cases.

This collection was done by Mr. Tom Thornburgh, an art major, as a project for the ceramics class that he took last semester.

Tom says all of these items are usable, but that many are chiefly for the pottery itself.

There are several steps in making an article from clay. The clay (refined and free from rock) is mixed with water. Then it is wedged, or the water content is reduced by working it on a wooden table, to a workable state (it will keep its shape when set on something).

Next it is put on a plaster bat, on a motor driven potter's wheel. The clay is centered, all the while the potter is using wet hands.

Now the ball of clay is opened by forcing the thumbs down into the middle. The shape now depends on the potter's fancy.

After the item is made, it is set to dry to a leather hardness; then it is trimmed.

Next it is put in a bisque fire, low earthenware temperature. It is not made waterproof, but to the consistency of a flower pot.

Now the object can be glazed and painted and placed in the kiln to be made bisqueous, waterproof.

This is how pottery, ever full of surprises and failures, is made.

DZ's Delegates Return from Nat'l Convention

Two representatives of the Delta Zeta sorority chapter from NWMSC attended a 5-day national convention of the sorority at Hot Springs, Arkansas.

Miss Marilyn Zbierski, St. Joseph, president of the local chapter, was one of the 140 delegates of the sorority's 143 chapters and 3 colonies. Dr. Wanda Walker, education, was one of 50 delegates from 210 alumnae chapters.

At an awards banquet, Dr. Walker, was presented the charter for the Maryville alumnae chapter, organized last year. Miss Zbierski received a certificate for the chapter's standards program during the last two years.

The Little Rock, Arkansas, alumnae chapter served as hostess for this the Delta Zeta's 27th National Convention and a celebration of their 60th birthday.

The theme of the main talks given was The American Heritage. F. Cleon Skousen, author of The Naked Communist and So You Want to Raise a Boy and field director for the American Security Council of Chicago, opened the discussion of the topic with his talk.

He warned the DZ's to be aware of the group of people within our own country who say they are anti-Communist but who are doing exactly what the Communists wish to do in taking away our freedoms and rights gradually.

Mr. Skousen said the best defense was to become knowledgeable and never be wrong on the facts one uses.

Besides the main talks other activities included receptions, banquets, luncheons, workshops, fireside activities, swimming, and other informal activities.

The DZ's, with their 143 college chapters, and 3 colonies, claim to be the largest national sorority. They also now have over 200 alumnae chapters.

Grads Plan Expansion

One of the newest clubs on campus is the Graduate Club which was formed last year. This club is an informal one and is open to any graduate student.

Officers of the club are Lynn Bollinger, president; Lawrence Wray, vice-president; and Mrs. Velda Anderson, secretary-treasurer.

Graduate students are urged to notice the following:

1. There are no formalities in which one must take part in order to join, and no dues are charged.

2. Meetings are held only when speakers and information are available for talks on the graduate level.

3. Notices are posted on the bulletin board in the den.

The topic of discussion will center around the yearbook production and newspaper work. Points that will be considered are: work schedules, yearbook calendars, outlines, budgeting, laboratory work, copyreading, problems of editing, photography, and advertising.

Displays that will be featured are: sample newspapers, sample yearbooks, textbooks and reference books, photography aids, yearbook companies' displays, and mimeograph materials and equipment.

Chalk Talk . . . Bob Cobb

As the baseball season neared the half-way mark, some very interesting situations had arisen. The national league race had developed into a two team battle between the Dodgers and the Giants with Pittsburg coming on strong, while the American league was engaged in a five team contest.

With Mickey Mantle back in the line-up, and Roger Maris hitting homers once again, the Yanks seemed ready to make their move.

Everyone in baseball circles is wondering how long those miraculous Los Angeles Angels can stay aloft in the paradise of the American League first division. Fred Haney and company have done a remarkable job for the Angels.

Yesterday, the first All-Star game of this season was played at the new D. C. Stadium in Washington. The midsummer classic was initiated by Arch Ward, a Chicago sportswriter, in 1933. That year the teams were chosen by the baseball fans throughout the country. This practice of fan-choice of players continued up until 1956. Then the Cincinnati fans grouped together and piled up enough votes to elect six Redlegs to the first team.

Since that time the players, coaches, and managers are given the selecting power by baseball commissioner Ford Frick to prevent another ballot-box stuffing.

Although this group has done a commendable job in their selections, we would love to see the power of the vote given back to the baseball fan.

Baseball moguls say there is a declining interest in baseball. We believe that with a little more fan participation, baseball would again gain back its national prestige.

Briefly scanning this year's All-Star squads we see the names of a few veterans and some highly-touted newcomers.

The American league chose Earl Battey, Jim Gentile, Billy Maron, Louis Aparicio, Rich Rollins, Leon Wagner, Mickey Mantle, and Roger Maris while the senior circuit selected Orlando Cepeda, Bill Mazeroski, Dick Groat, Ken Boyer, Del Crandall, Willie Mays, Tom Davis, and Roberto Clemente.

Statistics wise, we discover that the national league holds the edge in over-all batting average with a composite mark of .310 to a .286 rating for the junior circuit.

Meanwhile, the American league squad excels in the round-tripper department having belted 102 for the circuit while their national league rivals could muster only 81 four-basers.

The National league team boasts the best pitching staff with such flame throwers as Koufax, Drysdale, and Gibson on the mound.

Incidentally in the 1933 dream game, the first ever held, the All-Star headliners were Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Al Smith for the American league and Dizzy Dean, Carl Hubbell, Mel Ott, and Hank Wilson for the National league.

The American league won the first All-Star game 4-1.

This year's second All-Star game will be played July 30 at Wrigley Field in Chicago.

Chicken Hatching!

Have you ever seen the embryo of a hen egg? The students in Ag. 61, poultry production have.

In fact, under the direction of Mr. R. T. Wright, the students were conducting an experiment to see how a chicken grows and develops. They were hatching eggs in an incubator. Every third day, they removed an egg, broke it, and drew pictures of the embryo. This was carried to the twelfth day when all the change in the embryo except growth has taken place.

By the way, hatching time was July 9.

Dead Day

The question of having a "dead" day before finals crops up from year to year. In fact, it was a plank in all the platforms during the student body president election held last semester. And so, the issue is being debated among students again.

Why establish such a day? Most students are fully conscious of the fact that a great deal of emphasis is placed upon their final exam grades. In fact, some classes emphasis is as much as three-fourth of the grade. If the student were allowed this free day to prepare for a final exam, it is probable that his over-all performance would improve.

With the present system a student could have four final examinations in a twenty-four period directly after his last class meeting. Such a set-up brings out the "what's the use" feeling. It is readily agreeable that a student could not put forth his best efforts under such a strain.

The proposed "dead" day would also benefit the faculty as well. Hurriedly prepared examinations often times miss important items. But with more time a professor could prepare a more complete and
